FHWA Announces Benchmark Clearance Interval Survey

As part of a Pooled Fund Study (TPF - Study Detail (pooledfund.org), the FHWA is launching a benchmark survey on clearance intervals. This survey can be found here: Clearance Intervals Survey (kittelson.com).

Please share this with your partner agencies who manage traffic signal timing, no matter how large or small.

This survey seeks to collect information on your agency's use of yellow change and red clearance intervals. Combined, these two intervals make up the change period. This information will be stored in a database and used as a benchmark of current practice for comparison to future practice.

If you have additional comments about a question or your answer needs clarification, please note that in the comment box at the bottom of the respective page.
